WAR IN NEAR EAST AGAIN THREATENS

PRESIDENT ASKS HALT ON PARLEY

Tells Senate Not to Adopt Economic Conference Proposal

WOULD BE EMBARRASSING

Negotiations for Such Meeting Already On, He Says

WASHINGTON — (Associated Press) — President Harding asked the senate today not to adopt Senator Borah's proposal for a new international economic conference, saying in a letter to Republican Leader Lodge that formal congressional action on the subject now would embarrass him in negotiations he already is conducting looking to such a conference.

The president's letter was sent to Senator Lodge for presentation during the senate's second day of debate on the Borah proposal which is embodied in an amendment to the naval appropriation bill.

The president acted directly to block senate action after he had consulted with Secretary Hughes and after Senator Lodge had visited the White House and had reported on the progress made in the determined fight already being waged against the Borah amendment by administration leaders in the senate.

The letter stated that while the senate might properly "advise" in regard to international negotiations, its action on the Borah plan might give "false impressions to European powers."

The administration, the president said, was trying to be helpful in the European situation which "had been given most thoughtful and thoughtful consideration for many months."

Without disclosing details of what he is doing, the president suggested that congress might be helped by freeing the hands of the administration negotiators who are already engaged in the work of the foundation of European difficulties, and that this nation "can not assume to say to one nation what it shall pay in reparations nor to another what it shall accept."

As to further armament limitation negotiations, the president said, "the administration is not in a position to make any promise to the world which cannot be fulfilled until the nations directly concerned express their readiness to cooperate to such an end."

Senator Lodge presented the president's letter immediately after the senate convened and the reading of it by a clerk was listened to attentively by senators on both sides of the chamber.

Senator Borah noted on a pad of paper the high spots of the communication and smiled broadly at the president's declaration that the proposed amendment would in effect give the impression that the executive branch of the government was not fully alive to the important situation and that congress could facilitate the work of the executive branch by freeing the hands of that body.

Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, gained the floor after the letter had been read and began an address in behalf of the Borah proposal which he championed as a "sure likely to cure the economic ills of the world by restoring Europe and re-organizing agricultural products of the world."

Senator Lodge later told the senate that he could not state "explicitly" the nature of the administration negotiations for a conference but he authorized to say they did not include cancellation of the allied debt. He said President Harding told him the administration was opposed to cancellation but inclined to favor longer amortization and interest payments.

SARAH BERNHARDT MUCH IMPROVED

PARIS — The condition of Sarah Bernhardt showed marked improvement today and the doctors believe she is out of danger but she must remain in bed for several days, perhaps a week.

Mrs. Bernhardt received her son, Maurice, this morning. Coincidentally with the improvement in the actress' condition, her aged mother, Arthur, who has been with her for 45 years, has become seriously ill. She is suffering from pneumonia as a result of his long night vigils to attend Madame Bernhardt's needs.

ROBBERS GET $40,000

NEW YORK — Robbers early today blew open the safe of the Harlem office of the New York Edison Company and secured with $40,000 after gagging and assaulting Philip O'Connor, the night watchman. His skull was fractured and he was removed to a hospital in a serious condition.

BLAST KILLS EIGHT

TRENT, Italy — Seven workers and one soldier were killed when a number of Austrian-made bombs being transferred from the war zone blew up at Fort Larcocchia near Nezzolomzardo.

CLEAR WALKS! USE POLICE!

LIMA has an ordinance providing a penalty for failure to remove snow from sidewalks within four hours after it ceases to fall.

So far, it has not been enforced this winter. City Hall says it is handicapped by lack of funds. Men cannot be employed, officials say, to make the rounds and prod dilatory property owners or renters.

Snow which fell shortly before Christmas, in many cases, remained on walks until Old Sol removed it with his warm rays. Lima folk on their way to their offices or places of employment trudged thru several inches of snow Thursday morning. Only a small percentage of householders had shoveled a clear walk. Poor street car service for a time on some lines forced many to walk who otherwise would not. Failure to clear walks caused men, women and children to plow thru snow that should have been out of the way.

If City Hall cannot provide men in the regular way to enforce the ordinance, the police department should be used. The department is equipped with vehicles to facilitate fast work and the appearance at homes of a policeman would have more effect than that of a member of the street force.

The walks should be kept clean. City Hall should cooperate in this matter and see that the ordinance is obeyed. Household-ers who have the proper spirit in the matter will not object. Those who object to the point of refusing to abide by the ordinance, should be treated accordingly. The fine provided is $5 to $50.

TRAFFIC IS IMPEDED BY RAIN, FREEZE, SNOWFALL

Nearly Two Inches of Precipitation in 36 Hours

MINOR MISHAPS ARE RESULT

Cars Derailed, Lines Down, Auto Is Wrecked

Lima's first real blizzard of the winter made its presence known in many ways.

Police were kept busy Wednesday night in receiving reports of numerous minor automobile accidents, street which preceded the downfall of snow making the streets a glaring expanse of slippery ice.

Interurban cars and trains were delayed and it will be late Thursday afternoon before traffic in and out of Lima regains normal.

Reparations of lines were responsible for the derailment of a city car at Cole and Market-sts early Thursday morning.

RAINFALL NEAR 2 INCHES

During the 24 hours ending at 5 p. m. Wednesday, a total of .96 inch of rainfall was registered in the cylinder maintained in the open at the DeLong house, W. Kibby-st, by Miss Ollie DeLong, local weather observer.

Precipitation from 5 a. m. to midnight Wednesday, when the rain changed to snow, was .83 inch, including melted snow, when the measurement was taken Thursday morning by Miss DeLong.

The total snowfall, which ceased Thursday at 10 a. m., was five inches on the level, Miss DeLong stated.

The accidents, which were reported to police, include caving in of a new sewer at North-st and Kenilworth-av; a live wire blown down at 811 S. Main-st; a number of red barricade signals extinguished in various points in the city where street repair work is under way.

An automobile, belonging to George Glover was struck by a city street car on W. Market-st late Wednesday night and Thursday morning an automobile, badly damaged, said to be the property of R. E. McCormick, 431 S. Main-st, was found against a telephone pole at Market and Market-sts. Police are investigating the accident.

Breaks in trolley wires south of Lima, caused by sleet, temporarily interrupted service on the Ohio Electric, the first Springfield car to reach Lima Thursday, arriving at noon. Cars from Toledo were said to be 15 or 20 minutes late.

RAILS HARD HIT

The greatest damage due to the storm was reported by the Pennsylvania Railroad. Signal, telephone and telegraph wires were out of commission Thursday morning. Repair crews were rushed to the damaged areas and regular service is expected to be resumed late in the day. Thursday morning trains were one hour late.

B. & O. Railroad trains were 15 or 20 minutes late, it was reported. A conference will be held this afternoon between Manager Bingham, T. A. Lanker, chief of police, and C. E. Dick, street superintendent, to determine the number of men which can be sent about the city serving notices on property owners to remove snow from walks.

JEWELS HIDDEN 3,000 YEARS

LUXOR, Egypt — (Associated Press) — Some of the priceless treasures found in the tomb of King Tutankhamen saw daylight for the first time in more than 3,000 years today when Howard Carter and Arthur Mace, excavators of the Metropolitan Museum of Arts in New York, superintended their removal to the tomb of King Set II, a half mile away. One of the objects transferred was a magnificent inlaid box upon which was depicted a king, Tutankhamen and his queen at a lion hunt. The box contained the queen's robes and jewelry, including a large black amber necklace.

Dick, it will be possible to search out several of the worst offenders and hale them into court, Bingham says.

City officials would rather use persuasion than force, it was indicated Thursday and every effort will be made to induce property owners to clean their own sidewalks and thus avoid a police court experience.

STEEL WORKERS WILL RECEIVE WAGE BOOST

YOUNGSTOWN — Puddlers working under the sliding scale of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers will receive an increase in wages of 1.25 per cent for the next two months, as the result of an examination of selling prices made here today in the office of James H. Nutt, secretary of the Western Bar Iron Association.

In the presence of M. F. Tighe, president of the union, the average selling price of bar iron for the past two months was found to be $22.20 per hundred pounds.

The explosion occurred when Mrs. Ramsey attempted to light the gas in the kitchen stove. Escaping gas which had accumulated in the stove exploded blowing the kitchen to pieces.

CAPTAIN BLOOD:

YOU WILL BE THRILLED, FASCINATED, AMUSED BY THIS NEW NOVEL WHICH WILL APPEAR SERIALLY IN THE NEWS

By RAFAEL SABATINI

CHAPTER I The Messenger

Peter Blood, bachelor of medicine and several other talents besides, smoked a pipe and tended the geraniums bored on the sill of his window above Water Lane in the town of Bridgewater.

Mr. Blood's attention was divided between his task and the stream of humanity in the narrow street below, pouring for the second time that day in the direction of Castle Field, where earlier in the afternoon Ferguson, the Duke's chaplain, had preached a sermon that contained more treason than divinity.

Bridgewater, like Taunton, had yielded generously of its manhood to the service of the Duke. Peter Blood had read the absurd proclamation posted at the Cross at Bridgewater—as it had been posted also at Taunton and elsewhere—setting forth that "upon the decease of our Sovereign Lord Charles the Second the right of succession to the Crown of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, with the dominions and territories thereto belonging, did legally descend and devolve upon the most illustrious and high-born Prince James Duke of Monmouth, son and heir apparent to the said King Charles the Second."

Political Spotlight Is On Wilson As He Reaches His 66th Birthday

WASHINGTON — (United Press) — The senate today passed a resolution instructing Vice-President Coolidge to express to former President Wilson "the great pleasure and joy with which the senate has heard the news of his recovery to good health."

By HARRY HUNT

WASHINGTON — (Special) — His sixty-sixth birthday anniversary—December 28, 1922—finds Woodrow Wilson again in the edge of the political spotlight.

Whether that spotlight again will swing to put the former president in the center of its radiance is to many the most engaging question before America today.

There seems little doubt that Wilson today is physically better than at any time since his collapse in 1919.

His left side still is partly paralyzed. Wilson now is able to stand without his cane and he even walks a few steps in his garden without its aid. His color is better. He has taken on weight.

ABREAST OF AFFAIRS

And there are evidences that his stronger physical condition is permitting a more active following of national affairs.

Wilson has been writing letters on public questions—notably on the late elections. Also his Armistice Day speech to admirals gathered at his home revealed he does not yet concede defeat in the cause in which he sacrificed his health, and indicated his expectation that American participation in world affairs would become the dominating issue in 1924.

Wilson unquestionably is the leader of the Democratic party today. His hold on the minds and hearts of the rank and file of his party has been strengthened by his illness and by the difficulties in which the world has found itself the last two years.

WILL GUIDE 1924 POLICIES

It seems certain Wilson will lay down the lines on which the Democratic party will attempt its comeback in 1924 and that his influence on the choice of candidates will be most powerful.

"But for his remaining seated," said Georges Clemenceau after his recent call on the ex-president, "he was the same Wilson I knew in Paris. Slightly taller, nothing else. He showed himself thoroughly abreast of affairs."

Of Wilson's famous 14 points—his creed for establishing world peace—Clemenceau said: "Yes, I mentioned them. And Wilson's face lit up. He was a firm believer in their ultimate 'triumph.'"

TWO MEN SHOT IN STREET BATTLE

West Virginia Authorities Defied by Mill Worker

STUBENVILLE — (Associated Press) — Joseph Jones, 50, a mill worker, and Deputy Sheriff Harry L. Jones, of Brooke-co., West Virginia, lay wounded in hospitals today and Follansbee, W. Va., a little town just across the Ohio river from here, was recovering from the terror of a gun battle between Jones and officials last night during which its houses were pelted by hundreds of bullets fired from a machine gun, pistols, rifles and riot guns.

WIFE MAKES COMPLAINT

The shooting started when Deputy Sheriff Jones and other officers went to the Joseph Jones home at Follansbee to arrest him on his wife's complaint that while under the influence of liquor, he had forced her at the point of a pistol to sign over her property to him.

The deputy sheriff was wounded in the first fighting and when Joseph Jones barricaded himself in the house, reinforcements with a machine gun and other weapons were brought on.

More than a thousand shots were fired by the officials and Follansbee citizens who also participated, and Jones, wounded in the leg, finally ceased firing.

His wife witnessed the battle from a neighbor's porch.

MOTHER AND SON DIE OF INJURIES IN BLAST

TOLEDO — James Ramsey, 18-months-old, son of William Ramsey, who with his mother, Mrs. Grace Ramsey, 23, was injured when a gas explosion wrecked the Ramsey home December 22, died in a hospital here early today. The child's mother died in the same hospital yesterday. The father, who was badly burned about the face and hands when he carried his wife and son from the blazing house will recover, it is said.

The explosion occurred when Mrs. Ramsey attempted to light the gas in the kitchen stove. Escaping gas which had accumulated in the stove exploded blowing the kitchen to pieces.

Probe Of Bomb Plot Ordered

COLUMBUS, Georgia — (Associated Press) — The Muscogee-co grand jury was summoned today for an extraordinary session to investigate the alleged bomb plot unearthed here which caused the police to place guards around the homes of the five city commissioners, an apartment house and a large factory to present to the grand jury today. The police said they were told by a confidential source that the plot was to bring about wholesale destruction in this city.

The police said twelve men were involved in the plot, which included members of the Columbus police department, malcontents, criminals and one or two persons from the Alabama cities across the river from here.

6 POSTS BROKEN

Drastic Action Necessary to Save Light Standards

Drastic action may be taken by the city very soon if destruction of boulevard light posts continues at the present rate, C. A. Bingham, city manager, indicated Thursday.

Six standards have been broken in as many days and it is feared that the destruction will not stop unless some penalty is set to make motorists more careful, it was said.

While the cost of replacing standards is charged to the persons breaking them, the unsightly condition of the street and the dark section caused cannot be remedied so easily, Bingham points out.

On several occasions automobile drivers have attempted to escape paying for damage caused by fleeing after the accident, Bingham said. Most of the motorists are honest, however, and call the police station and admit their guilt.

Just what the nature of the penalty which may be enforced was not revealed by Bingham. It is believed the city commission may discuss the question when it meets in special session Friday afternoon.

SUSPECT QUIZZED IN GIRL'S DEATH

Clues Traced in Killing of Theresa McCarthy

NEW YORK — (Associated Press) — Brooklyn's keenest detectives, puzzled for a solution of the mysterious shooting of Theresa McCarthy, 10-year-old school girl, in her home Tuesday, took note of the slightly upward course of the 22 calibre bullet that pierced her heart, disclosed by the autopsy, and today inclined more to the theory that another child of similar age was responsible for the tragedy.

The deduction was that the bullet's course would have been downward rather than upward, had an older and taller person fired the shot, and in this belief the search was continued for one of Theresa's playmates, frightened into silence by the tragic consequences.

GIRLS ATTACKED

The police working on various angles in hope of the merest clue and with a dragnet over city have in custody James P. Grace, of Brooklyn, 25, a collector, on complaint of the father of a 6-year-old Bronx girl, who was attacked by a man in the hallway of her home December 6. The prisoner, the police said, is being interviewed regarding a similar complaint concerning a girl in East 80th-st, Manhattan, two days later and also in the case of the McCarthy girl.

The slain child's mother has been unable to aid the police in identifying any person she thinks may have been entering the house to see Theresa, while she was alone in the daytime.

CITY UNABLE TO PAY

CINCINNATI — City employees on bi-weekly payrolls will not be paid Saturday because there are insufficient funds to meet the payroll.

PLEAD GUILTY

FREMONT — Four employees of the Nickel Plate railroad, charged with kidnapping another employee during the strike, pleaded guilty of assault and were fined $10 and costs each.

Oglethorpe's farm stood a mile or so to the south of Bridgewater on the right bank of the river.

In the spacious, stone-flagged hall, the doctor found Lord Gildoy, his cheeks were leaden-hued, his eyes closed and from his blue lips came a faint, labored breath: a faint, moaning noise.

Mr. Blood stood for a moment silently considering his patient. Then he called for water and linen and what else he needed for his work.

He was still intent upon it a half-hour later when the draughtsman entered the room. The clatter of hooves and hoarse shouts that heralded their approach disturbed him not at all. But his lordship, who had now recovered consciousness, showed considerable alarm.

FLEETS RUSH TO CONSTANTINOPLE

Turks Demand Surrender of Rich Mosul Oil Fields

ALLIES BACKED BY U. S.

British Forces Prepare for Expected Clash

LONDON — (United Press) — The spectre of war in the Near East haunted the Lausanne conference today.

With British and Turkish delegates at swords points over the question of whether the rich Mosul oil region shall be surrendered by Britain, the war scare which the conference was called to avert, sprang up again.

Britain rushed a fleet to Constantinople today "to influence the Turks toward peace."

The admiral announced that Admiral Brock's squadron was steaming from Malta, the British naval base in the Mediterranean, at full speed for Constantinople.

This action was taken at a time when the Turks at the Lausanne conference were defying the British and demanding that the rich Mosul oil basin be surrendered.

In announcing the fleet had been dispatched, the admiral stated it was being sent as a precautionary measure "a sort of moral influence toward peace."

TURKS STAND PAT

LAUSANNE — (United Press) — Turkey today chose a breakdown of the Lausanne conference in losing Great Britain hold the rich Mosul oil lands.

In face of threats by Marquis Curzon, British foreign minister, the conference will "reach a breaking point within a week," unless the Turks capitulate on half a dozen points, Ismet Pasha, armed with stand pat orders from Ankara, refused to give way.

"We would be hanged from the highest trees in Anatolia, if we retreated from our position," Turkish delegates said.

U. S. BACKS ALLIES

The United States supported the allies against the Turks today as the Lausanne conference neared the breaking point.

Open defiance of Marquis Curzon warning of a further effort on the part of Turkey to secure the Mosul oil fields would lead to a breakdown of the parley was voiced by Ismet Pasha.

This was followed by announcement that the Turks would not give ground on capitulations and that they refused to have judges appointed by The Hague.

Turkish judges where foreign litigation was involved.

France backed Britain in this matter. Minister Barere declaring he was amazed at Ismet Pasha's declaration that such mixed tribunals were worse than original capitulations. He warned the Turks they had taken up position "on ground where the allies could not meet them."

Richard Washburn Child, American ambassador to Rome, then voiced the United States support of allied demand for repeal of capitulations. The American ambassador denied Turkey's right to abolish capitulations of 1914, without consent of signatories.

"The United States," Child said, "considers her rights under capitulation still existing."

GREKS PLAN ACTION

ATHENS — (United Press) — The Greek government today planned to rush 100,000 troops to eastern Thrace against the Turks in event of a breakdown of the Lausanne conference. General Plastiras is to be sent to the frontier next week.

FLEET LEAVES

MALTA — (United Press) — A British fleet left here today and steamed full speed for Constantinople.

The fleet included Admiral Brock's flagship, light cruiser squadron and a flotilla of destroyers. Other warships will follow today just as rapidly as they can be prepared.

POWERFUL TURK ARMY ASSEMBLED

(By EDWARD J. BING)

NEW YORK — (United Press) — While the Lausanne conference is facing the possibility of its breaking up, owing to disagreement over the Mosul oil question, a powerful Turkish army is assembled at Diarbekir, a strategic point of great importance in the vicinity of the disputed area, ready to pounce upon the oil fields.

When I left the Near East a few weeks ago that force which is under the command of Diyadin Pasha, one of Turkey's ablest military leaders of Gallipoli fame, numbered about 50,000 fully equipped men.

Mosul is one of the most ancient centers of human civilization and has seen uncounted battles and contests from Biblical days to the present. Just across the Tigris river, opposite the city, is a hill which hides from view the remains of the once glorious city of Nineveh, which passed from splendor to ruin as the prophets of the Old Testament had predicted.

the Frohishers, which may account for a certain wildness that had early manifested itself in his disposition. A set of curious chances led him to take service with the Dutch, then at war with France; and a predilection for the sea made him elect that this service should be upon that element.

He had the advantage of a commission under the famous de Ruyter, and fought in the Mediterranean engagement in which that great Dutch admiral lost his life.

In January, 1655, he had come to Bridgewater, possessor of a fortune that was approximately the same as that with which he had originally set out from Dublin eleven years ago.

That is all his story, or so much of it as matters up to that night, six months later, when the battle of Sedgemoor was fought.

The armies came into collision in the neighborhood of two o'clock in the morning. Mr. Blood slept undisturbed thru the distant boom of cannon. Not until four o'clock when the sun was rising to dispel the last wisps of mist over that stricken field of battle, was he awakened from his tranquil slumbers.

There in slanting golden light of the new-risen sun stood a breathless, wild-eyed man and a steaming horse. In that moment Mr. Blood recognized that for the young shipmaster, Jeremiah Pitt, who had been drawn for the general enthusiasm into the vortex of that rebellion.

"It is Lord Gildoy," he painted. "He is sore wounded at Oglethorpe's Farm by the river. I bore him thither . . . and . . . and he sent me for you. Make haste, in God's name."

Mr. Blood went off to dress and to fetch a case of instruments.

AMERICA LEADS IN PRETTY WOMEN

Judgment is Pronounced by English Expert

WEAR THEIR CLOTHES BETTER

Most Beautiful Found at Seattle, She Declares

Fashion Editor of The United Press

BY HEDDER HOYT

(LONDON.—(United Press)—“America women wear their clothes better than any women in the world. The finest looking women in America are in the Pacific Northwest and of these the most beautiful can be found in Seattle.”

This is the considered judgment of one of the world's greatest experts—Reville—the creator of the famous wedding gown of Princess Mary and the gownmaker for the Court of England.

No costume in all Europe is better qualified to pass judgment upon the merits of the women of the world than Reville, who is an international traveler, an artist, who has been a court gownmaker for many years. His patrons include not only the royal family of England but nearly all of the duchesses and ladies of all land. One may drop in on his fashion reviews any afternoon and find such notables as Lady Mountbatten, or even Princess Mary herself.

The models who display Reville gowns resemble slightly the famous beauties of the court, as most of the gowns they display are created especially for these personages.

As they approach with a grace that is almost queenly, one murmurs “what lovely women and what gorgeous creations!”

And Reville, hooding not, bends over to whisper to her, “be an American woman! They have the grace and carriage of the goddesses. They are exquisite. No where have I seen such women as on your Pacific coast. They walk like queens. Their figures are superb. They are the personification of perfect poise. They have the complexion and stately proportions of the English girls, combined with beautiful faces and exquisite grace. The American girl is never conscious of her hands and feet. She is never awkward and is always perfectly sure of herself. I think that is one of her greatest charms.”

“And what of the French women?” I ask.

“Dogs!” he replied. “Their lines are not right and their gowns always bag about the waist line, where they are confined with an elastic band. The French designer throws his gowns together with a lack here and there. The English could not sell such haphazard frocks. Many of our simplest dresses represent months and even years of hand work. We pride ourselves upon exquisite workmanship not only upon the materials themselves but upon the finishing of our gowns. And one must admit that a place in all Europe can see such gorgeous handwork as one sees in England; gowns hand woven with a single thread of gold; lace hundreds of yards old, embroidered in seed pearls; exquisite embroidered shawls and jeweled robes beyond description.”

ROYAL FASHION REVIEW

Somewhere in the room an old English clock chimed and the review at Reville begins.

A wonderful dark haired girl approaches in a short flaring jacket of jade green collared with black and white monkey fur and worn with a white ducalys sport skirt. She carries a white enameled cane and wears high white Russian boots. She stops to chat with a girl gowned in a little jacket of Chinchilla rabbit and it is the first time we have seen such a remarkable imitation of chinchilla. Her skirt is pleated affair of gray, her Russian boots are of gray suede and her hat is a chinchilla turban. Heville believes in using imitations of costly furs for his sport costumes.

Suddenly the room is filled with groups of girls in sport costumes, chatting quietly and talking about. There is a daring little suit of red flannel with huge patch pockets and collar and cuffs of white ermine; white handwoven sport suit with corresponding muffler and cap; a hand crocheted gown of cream silk with a long cape to match which has a little hood attachment which is worn over the head.

One could rave forever about the evening gowns at Reville's. In the first place, we notice that the English girls have wonderful lines. They are tall and slender and perfectly suited for displaying the new straight-lined models.

Dianna, an olive-skinned beauty, is wearing a form fitting gown of black Spanish lace, over which she wears a little turkey red velvet bolero, a perfect replica of the old Spanish boleros and over this there is still another wrap—a voluminous cape of Spanish lace. The red skirt showing thru the black lace is quite fascinating. Nearly every evening gown is accompanied by one of these little colorful velvet jackets or by a Spanish shawl and we are told that the poor heathen system of England is responsible for these wraps which are worn out the evening cape of fur.

SOLID COLOR SCHEME

In this little fashion gathering we see more Spanish shawls than in an ensemble act of Carmen. Reville prefers the solid color scheme for the Spanish shawl, although there is one of purest shade of amber, edged in white leaves and collared with ermine that is marvelous. A gold shawl embroidered in self-color uses a huge roll collar of brown monkey fur and is also distinctive.

British and Turkish diplomacy was successfully under the sovereignty of the Sumorian-Akkadian King Sargon, who ruled about 2,500 B. C.; of Babylon, Assyria, Persia, Alexander the Great, the Seleucid Empire, the Second Persian Empire, the Abbasid Caliphs, among whom Harun Al Rashid of “Arabian Nights” fame was the most remarkable; it saw the victorious onslaught of Tamerlan's Mongol hordes and has since formed part of the Turkish empire. After the British victory in the Near East in 1918, it was occupied by England's armies which sought to face a bloody uprising of the natives, which ultimately forced the British to evacuate it and to withdraw their forces to Southern Mesopotamia. Mosul is now part of the Mesopotamian kingdom of England's vassal, King Feisal of Iraq.

While the city of Mosul is Arabic, the entire territory of which it is the center and which is now the subject of the discussions at Lausanne, is inhabited by the Kurds, who claim allegiance to Turkey.

This region is one of the richest oil territories of the world and it is believed that, once exploited, it will yield a production equaling or possibly surpassing the output of the Mexican fields.

The richest among the numerous fields of the region is at Gayara, immediately to the south of the city of Mosul, but there is quite a series of exceptionally abundant oil wells in the neighborhood. The British claim to the oil fields is based upon negotiations which took place before the world war between the Turkish government and the Turkish Petroleum Company, a British refueling concern. The Turks refuse the British claims, declaring that the conversations had led to no agreement of any description, because the outbreak of the war interrupted the conversations before any concession had been granted.

This statement has so far not been disproved by the British.

Chester M. Cable, 126 N. Collett-st., complained to police that his automobile was seen from front of the Masonic building, Wednesday night.

PROVE FUNERAL

Final services for Mrs. Pharrissa Provove, 76, whose death occurred Monday, will be held Friday at 1:30 p. m. at the Church of the Brethren, Elm-st. in charge of Rev. Samuel Driver. Interment in Woodlawn cemetery.

MIDES AND FURS STOLEN

Hides and furs valued at nearly $50 were stolen from a shop operated by W. A. Miller, 216 S. Central-av., sometime Wednesday night, he reported to police Thursday.

HE GETS PAY FOR KILLING MEN

New York State Executioner Collects $150 for Each Life

NEVER TALKS OF JOB

Hulbert Handles Current That Carries Death

BY ALEXANDER HERMAN

ALBANY, N. Y., (Special)—A killing of a man for a killing of a man—And another $150 in the pocket of John W. Hulbert, state executioner, who probably has executed more men than any other living person.

There were 17 in 1922; 12 the year before. But in 1919 there was a lull. Only two were sent to the chair.

Hulbert is a man of silence. Small, short-sighted and snappy, he goes about his work in the Death House at Sing Sing without a word. A test of the current in the afternoon, a few preparations and he is ready. When the condemned man had shaved, is strapped in the Chair of Death, and the contacts made, the executioner withdraws a little side chamber, throws a switch and watches the bulb in front of him. It gets dimmer and dimmer as life ebbs, and then flares up—When it is all over.

A GOOD JOB, SAYS WIFE

Hulbert then silently packs his little bag, boards a train and returns to his regular job. He is electrician of Auburn Prison.

At home he never discusses his job and his family is discreetly silent.

But Mrs. Hulbert finds no fault with his work.

“It's no worse than other jobs,” she says. “If anything, it is better. It is the execution of the law.”

“Somebody has to do it. Why not my husband?”

“He has been connected with prisons as an electrician for 23 years. When the call came for him to do the added work, he took it.”

“It wasn't a matter of like or dislike. It was just a matter of work punishment. It is a patriotic duty. Men who go to the chair are all guilty. There is plenty of time for appeal or reprieve if they merit it before the execution.”

“I don't know how many men my husband has executed. He keeps no list and has probably lost count of the number.”

“He doesn't mind the work, or else he would give it up,” she says. “But his son won't follow in his footsteps. He has gone into the automobile business.”

STUDENTS FROM FAR COUNTRIES GUESTS IN ADA COLLEGE EVENT

ADA.—(Special)—One of the most unique events in the annals of Ohio university was held here Wednesday night, when 125 students enjoyed a dinner given in the college cafeteria for members of the student body whose places of abode are so far removed it is impossible for them to go home for the holidays.

The event was planned by a citizen of this city, whose identity was not divulged by Dr. Edwin Smith, president of the college. Dr. Thomas Smith, executive secretary, also lent his presence in the cosmopolitan event, with other members of the faculty.

Among the students who were honor guests of the evening was S. P. Kukke, a native of India, taking a course in engineering here. He favored the assembly with interpretation of songs of his native country. Charles Lee, of China, gave Chinese songs and poems.

Students from all over the world are enrolled in the college here.

WARNER TO PICK SPEAKER FOR DELPHOS KIWAN MEET

Sam Warner, principal at Jefferson high school, Delphos, is expected to secure the speaker for the Delphos Kiwanis club meeting Tuesday. He is attending the Ohio Teacher's association convention in Columbus and may secure the football coach of Ohio Northern university, A. A. J. A. Breese and H. R. Hick, the latter superintendent of schools, are in charge of arrangements for the meeting, which will be in honor of the Jefferson high school football eleven of 1922. The gridirers will stage a stunt. Music will be furnished by the Mrs. Rose Fast orchestra.

STREETS AND CELLARS FLOODED IN DELPHOS

A driving snow storm, following closely upon an all-day rain Wednesday, converted Delphos streets Thursday into seas of slush and water.

Glogging of sewers as a result of the rain raised water on some streets as high as curbs. Property owners had considerable difficulty with flooded basements.

Visions of bob sled parties oppose, however. Providing a freeze sets in the best opportunity of the season for sledding will be presented.

REFERENDUM RECEIVED

A referendum from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has been received at the local chamber manager and Thursday it will be presented to the directors for their disposal, he said.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

Combined committees working on the merger of the chamber of commerce and the better business bureau will meet Thursday noon and discussion of plans at the Lima Club, Friday noon. James E. Morton, manager of the better business bureau, said Thursday. National affiliations will be one of the topics discussed, it is believed.

ANKLE SPRAINED

W. S. Crites, Lima R. D. 3, employed at the Lima Locomotive Works, stepped into a hole at the plant Wednesday night and suffered a severely sprained ankle. He was removed to St. Rita's hospital.

Sympathy Is Wasted By Stranger on Dog Killed by Motor Cop

Canine flesh felt the sharp sting of a steel jacket built from a gun in the hands of Dick Watkins, motor police, Thursday. Watkins left the bound where he had shot it, on Elizabeth-st. between Spring and Elm-sts, and called health authorities to remove it.

Ten minutes later, a man dashed madly into headquarters.

“Say, there's a dog lying suffering and helpless in the snow down on Elizabeth-st. The poor thing can't move,” the sympathetic stranger declared.

Watkins scratched his head. Ten minutes before he had shot and killed a dog dead on Elizabeth-st. Could it be the same one?

“Where is it?” he asked.

The man gave the location and continued the sympathetic lull. “It doesn't seem able to move—not able to move at all.”

“The darn dog's dead!” Watkins roared as soon as he could control himself.

The stranger slipped away quietly.

“BEST CELLARS” ARE POPULAR

May Yield Last Supply of Liquor On New Years

Lima's best cellars may yield up their last supply of New Year's spirits Sunday night.

Proud owners of case after case of the bottled goods laid in either before Volstead got in his work, or afterward by the aid of some worthy bootlegger, are face to face with an apparent crisis.

Three years have rolled round since the nation went bone dry. It is asserted that those who have had since that day have imbibed more, rather than less, than they formerly did.

If they had any friends—and who hasn't who had a cellar—they assisted, as much as possible. So the supply that was to last dwindled away.

From time to time many cellars were replenished by shipments brought in by bootleggers and rum runners.

DEMAND GREAT

The demand was greater than the supply. The good goods became more and more difficult to obtain.

Labels were forged, stamps imitated, contents adulterated. No one but chemist could tell what was what. Services of the few following that profession became much in demand. Their income for a time rivalled that of the original vendors.

Liberal samples taken for analysis, in some cases is said to have vastly increased the popularity and acquaintance of one chemist.

Bootleggers' goods gradually became worse, law officers more stringent and customers afraid to take a chance, until at last the real article is almost gone forever.

Whisky shipments into Lima have fallen off 75 per cent in the past year, according to Auditor W. E. Lippincott, who predicts the ultimate death of the traffic, from natural causes.

There is still a lot of hooch made in Allen-co, he admits, but the quality is not the sort sought by discriminating drinkers.

“There is some being made and always will be,” he declared. “Arrests may be made, but that will not stop it, any more than it does thieving.”

CLEMENCY OPPOSED

Lippincott is opposed to clemency for liquor traffickers. His opposition is believed to have led county commissioners to refuse paroles when the matter was up prior to “Christmas.”

Lippincott based his opinion that the liquor supply is almost shut off, on the premise that a year ago agents of an alleged booze ring made semi-regular runs to Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit and Toledo.

Some were caught, others not. They're laid off now, the prosecutor believes. At least, he says, their trips out of Lima are infrequent.

“They can't haul it in, loafing around Lima,” he concluded.

ADMINISTRATOR APPEALS INCREASED ALLOWANCE

Appeal in the matter of increasing the allowance of Bertha Rhoda was filed in common pleas court Thursday by Charles Rhoda, administrator of the estate of William Rhoda.

Money and property amounting to $1,000 was awarded the widow at the time the will was probated. The amount included $155 cash, $50 for a motor car, and $155 household goods.

Application seeking an increased allowance was filed in probate court and $553 awarded by Judge Jesse H. Hamilton at the conclusion of a hearing held Wednesday.

The administrator took exception to the court's decision and seeks a reversal in the upper court.

POSTOFFICE EMPLOYEES TO HAVE HOLIDAY, NEW YEARS

Uncle Sam's postoffice clerks and mail carriers will have a holiday Monday, New Year day, it was announced by Postmaster A. E. Gale Thursday, to compensate for the necessity of remaining on the job on Christmas, so that others might be made happy in getting Yuletide packages.

Money order, stamp, general delivery and registry windows will be open Monday at the postoffice from 9 to 10 a. m. No delivery by parcel post city of rural carriers. Collections of mail at 5:45 a. m. and 6 p. m. Mails will be made up and dispatched as usual.

FEUD CENTERS ON DR. M'KOIN

Ex-Mayor Forced to Flee Louisiana in Clash of Clans

FIGHT OF RIGHT AND WRONG

Battle Waged Between Reformers and Lawless Elements

MER ROUGE, La.—(United Press)—With two lives sacrificed on the altar of terrorism, a feud between reformers and lawless elements in Morehouse parish attracted national attention today.

Federal and state operatives in a sensational attempt to rid the country of rival bands of terrorists, preaching their gospels with force and fear, declared today the age-old fight between right and wrong were responsible for the brutal murders of Watt Daniels and Thomas Richards.

The fatal feud has centered about Dr. B. M. McKoin, former mayor, under arrest in Baltimore, charged with the murders, federal agents declared.

SUPREMACY OF RIGHT

McKoin's fight to establish supremacy of forces of the right began with his election to mayor in 1914, and culminated in outlaw characters forcing and terrorizing him until he fled the community last August.

Fifty-three illicit stills were operated in one ward and the parish law enforcement officials were powerless to cope with the situation, when the terrorists war began, residents said.

Klan members have aligned themselves with the reform element sweeping down in full regalia on underworld characters to stop illegal practices. They interposed themselves in dynamiting of cattle dipping vats and other outbreaks.

DOCTOR LOSES FIGHT

BALTIMORE (Associated Press)—Dr. B. M. McKoin, former mayor of Mer Rouge, La., today lost his fight for immediate release on habeas corpus proceedings.

He was remanded “without prejudice” to give the Louisiana authorities opportunity to present their case.

Dr. McKoin was arrested here Tuesday at the request of Governor Parker of Louisiana, who accused him of murder in connection with the Morehouse parish kidnapping last August.

Three judges of the Baltimore supreme bench sitting in city court, denied Dr. McKoin the right to bail.

A dispatch from Attorney General Cocco of Louisiana to State Attorney Leach, stated that Dr. McKoin formally has been charged with the murder of Watt Daniels and Thomas Richards. The dispatch added that a deputy sheriff on his way to Baltimore with the necessary papers in the case. It is possible that Ex-United States District Attorney Robert R. Carman, counsel for Dr. McKoin, will renew habeas corpus proceedings after the arrival of the Louisiana officer tomorrow.

DELPHOS COUNCIL FINANCE BODY PREPARES FOR 1923

Meeting of the finance committee of Delphos council has been set for January 8, according to announcement Thursday by Auditor W. E. Shaffer. The body will consider the semi-annual appropriation ordinance to be presented the following night at the regular meeting of council.

Due to a cut of $7,000 in city revenue for the ensuing fiscal year, the job of the committee will be anything but an enviable one, it is thought. Members of the committee are John Altenberger, chairman, J. A. Scherger and John Lehmkuhle.

BAR MEETING

Last meeting of the Allen County Bar Association for the year 1922 will be held Saturday, a luncheon affair, at the Argonne hotel. New officers are to be elected. Ralph Mackenzie, president, announced.

BOARD ACTS WISELY

ACTION taken by the board of trustees of the Lima Y. M. C. A. in voting to make a $500 bequest to the "Y" from the late George S. Vicary the nest egg of an endowment fund for the support of the excellent Lima institution, is a move in the right direction.

Few such public enterprises are successfully conducted or long endure without the help of an invested fund, only the increment therefrom to be used for maintenance purposes. Lima in the past has not been particularly fortunate in having bequests made to public institutions, save in what might be termed a small way, with no direct order for the gift to be used as an endowment.

While the Vicary gift provides only the beginning of such a fund as will be necessary to assure the maintenance of the Y. M. C. A. thru years to come, nevertheless it is a start. Information has been afforded to the effect that other citizens, still among the living, have made provisions in their wills for bequests to the "Y." When received, it is expected these will be added to the fund now a reality.

There is no form of monument that stands out more prominently in perpetuating the name of a citizen who has been called from life, than a substantial contribution to a public institution. This is augmented when the money thus bestowed is directed to be invested and only the interest therefrom used in behalf of the organization that is made beneficiary.

LOOKS LIKE WISDOM

IT was no more than was expected that the Lima Automobile club members would grasp the desirability and the good judgment of a plan evolved to have the state take over all unimproved main highways of the state, relieving county commissioners and township trustees from the duty of maintenance.

Fostered by the Ohio Good Roads association, it is planned to storm the legislature with a proposition to work out a highway program requiring an expenditure of $20,000,000 and transfer all present unimproved main highways to the state department. It is further proposed to provide a maintenance fund of $3,000,000 for general revenue. Upkeep is now under control of county and township officials.

The new plan would give about $2,000 state aid to each township in Ohio. With assured upkeep of 4,800 miles of unimproved stretches of 10,000 miles of main highways in the state, complaints from cross-country autoists of "bad pieces" of highway would be eliminated.

Elimination of emergencies is seen in this proposal, which in the past necessitated the transfer of funds for maintenance purposes after improvements were completed. It cannot be denied that unimproved sections of main highways are sadly neglected, in all parts of the state. Local officials, awaiting action by the state in permanent improvements, expend money on less traveled roads.

This very state of affairs is the impelling motive back of the move to have the state assume greater and broader highway responsibility than at the present time. While there is organizing a great force to put over the plan, there has been heard no dissenting voice thus far.

BOTTLED DEATH

POISON liquor took a heavy toll during Christmas celebrations thruout the country. It will bring death to many more if past New Year revels may be taken to indicate what is to be expected with the dawn of 1923. The public—a part of it which patronizes bootleggers—will not take heed. Gullible men fall for a fake government label and gulp down a poisonous concoction that brings death or blindness.

Repeated warnings have gone out in every quarter of the country since wood alcohol disposed of by unscrupulous men for gain first killed hundreds. It is still being sold, not extensively as at one time, however, and the raw product or small stills carrying a deadly poison is adding to the slow death of those who are foolish enough to drink it.

If all Lima had been permitted to witness the destruction of confiscated intoxicants at the office of Judge Emmett Jackson yesterday, it is probable that there would have been a big slump in the business of bootleggers henceforth. The odor of the various concoctions was sufficient to convince one of the quality. And the brand that appeared to be the best—a fancy name with forged government labels was shown by chemical analysis to be among the most deadly, a mixture of denatured alcohol and formaldehyde.

If you value your life or your sight, you will help put an effective boycott on the bootlegger.

day. Such as they never have in California. To the post, and found nothing. What a harvest another week will bring, methot.

Thence, to the office, and sat. Whence came many and numerous brigands on varied taylor bent. Out and over to Bill's, to find Jake Watt being trimmed by the Parson. And with him at the academy, his pretty granddaughter. Albeit, she having more sense than to have her golden hayre bobbed.

So, to the picture house of my old college chum, Doc Herb Thomas. Chatted with Pete Beck, the banker, also awaiting a cinema operation.

Thence in, and Doc didst find a radish lodged in my colon. Growing a fine new crop of the tasty breakfast fruit. He lectured me, the good Doc, long and hard on the eating of such garbage at so early morn hours. Saying it was not done in the better circles.

So, all thru the day, without lunch; except two beakers of malted milk prepared by "Mary," the efficient turnkey of Herby's shack. Albeit around the town, saw no one of import except Wang Wang, Elias Mosher's chief of staff. Thence met Dr. Lomley, the eminent Vaughnsville practitioner, and Major Gamble, the noted diagnostician. In the afternoon, bot fifty shares of Standard of Indiana. Which means one hundred to-morrow. And paid just twice for 'em that I didst in 1921. To the office casting up accounts. Thence to The Shack. And held discourse with Doc. On the joys of dancing until two o'clock. Then going to the Chop Suey for noble delicacies. And we did decide she would do so no more, except for the next three nights.

Dined like a Gargantuan on a leg o' lamb, with mint sauce; potatoes au gratin, chouffeur, haricots nouveaux, and a poulet salade. The sweet a poufing au ris, and fromage avec biscuits. Over the coffee, my wife, poor wretch, upbraided me for not having brot her. A new cham- ois skin for the dishes, the hard water having roughened them much.

In the evening, enfamilie, enjoyed a round of bridge. Auntie May-me back from my rich sister's in St. Marys, and packing for the winter in Florida. The lucky member of the House of Jackenrim.

Later, came many young people, all merry and gay. And they going, en trio, we had a round of grape-juice, with camembert cheese and wafers. And so happily, into the lonesome twin.

A LETTER FROM AN EDUCATED

What is the difference, if any, between a woman and a lady A. D. 1922?

An authority informs us that a lady is a woman who looks after the domestic affairs of a family, a woman to whom obedience or homage is owed, the feminine correlative of a lord, a woman of social distinction or superior position, a woman of refined and gentle manners. Anyway a lady is a woman. Since we have no lords in this country we have no ladies of that cut. But any one can get a pretty fair idea of what constitutes a lady by reference to the authority quoted, Dr. Noah Webster.

Here is a letter from an educated lady or at least a lady who is being exposed to education and in whom it seems to take:

St. Hospital. Dr. William Brady, Dear Doctor:

"Your valuable letter of information reached me today and you may be sure it was appreciated. I shall always remember the good advice you gave me, as I have no one else to rely on. My mother died when I was 10 years old and my father sent me away to school. My school companions told me things which I have now found out not to be true. Again I thank you from my heart for the precious advice you gave me, and I wish you success and health and long life.

Yours Sincerely,
JONQUIL RIBETTE.
Of course that isn't the lady's name but she is a pupil nurse in a hospital training school.

Thousands of ladies of education might just as well be orphans at 10, so far as any adequate instruction in the truth of life by their mothers may be concerned.

Miss Ribette writes a brief enough letter but it tells a big story at that. My school companions told me

HOW TO FORGET TROUBLES

TROUBLES knock up your system like Jack Dempsey knocks down his opponent.

Troubles deal blows both in the head and stomach—and they hurt the stomach more than they do the head!

Troubles give the stomach indigestion, slow up the liver—and then follow constipation and biliousness.

The way to get rid of troubles is to invigorate digestion, stimulate liver and bowels and tone up the entire system. The best way to do this—has been for the past 80 years—is to take Beecham's Pills!

Then you will feel so good that "troubles" become merely problems, to be solved readily by the clear, keen brain of health.

SPEAKING OF ATMOSPHERE

The fresh air fiend, the fresh air fiend! To sweep us with an icy draught. Oh, there's a guy that should be beamed, No matter where he may appear, He always says, "It's close in here!" And tho' it's chill! Outside, he will Proceed to open windows, thus Refrigerating all of us.

The fresh air fiend, the fresh air fiend! When from the cold we're nicely screened, And when the room is good and hot, Is he content? No, he is not. He pants for air And then and there He schemes and plots, with deadly craft,

The fresh air fiend, the fresh air fiend! So vigorous, so rudely-mixed, Within a barn he should be kept, A barn by frigid breezes swept! But there, I guess He'd feel distress, And for more air he'd loudly shout Until the horses kicked him out.

I dearly love the out-of-doors. I love the wintry winds that roar. But, tho' the fresh air fiends desire, I do not like outdoors inside. So I repeat, Turn on the heat, And let the fresh air fiends go And hob-nob with the Equinox. (Copyright 1922)

MRS. DONALD BAKER and Miss Margaret Simpson received a large group of guests at an attractive bridge-tennis at the home of Mrs. Baker, Barbara Ann Court, Thursday. Holiday appointments prevailed throughout the room for the occasion.

Guests included Misses Geraldine Maginn, Louise Ackerman, Helen McGinnis, Leona Bernstein, Jane Bentley, Donna Shuppell, Margaret McHaffey, Dorothy Kahle, Abigail Sullivan, Helen King, Margaret McNeill, Mary Kathryn, Martha and Annette Roby, Esther Krite, Mary Margaret Bourk, Serilda Wood, Gertrude Boose, Janet White, Marion Cable, Ruth Wells, Jeanette Stolzenbach, Magdalene Stolzenbach, Ruth Simpson, Piqua; Betty and Sara Laughlin, Mary Rebette, Margaret Miles, Chicago, Jernice Aldenderfer, Circleville, Helen Basinger, Elizabeth Brennan, Dorothy Schell, Corinne Bartoughs, Mildred Lillenthal, Florence Price, Josephine Garrison, Esther Wagner, Eloise Cunningham, Margaret Graham, Mildred Catt, Helen and Dorothy Hunter and Carolyn Schryver, Columbus.

Mesdames Sylvia Holstine, J. C. Atkinson, Carl H. Noville, W. J. Allgren, Donald McGinnis, Creston, Iowa; Mark Slusser, O. V. McMullen, Glenn Woodruff, Robert Haas, Greenburg, Ind.; Frank Wallace, Ralph Shriver, James Sparks, Danville, Ill.; Clayton Graham, William Davis and Duffie Hull.

A gay assemblage of the socially elite gathered at the Elks' home Wednesday evening for the Charity Ball given under the auspices of the Delphian club. The affair was one of the most outstanding and brilliant in Lima society for many a day, over 200 couples being in attendance.

In the receiving line were Mrs. E. R. Quinn, Jr., president, Mrs. Chester M. Cable, Mrs. M. A. Wagner, Mrs. Roy B. Gregg, Mrs. William P. Deisel, Mrs. Mark Kolter, Mrs. T. R. Schoonover, Mrs. M. K. Tate, Mrs. Harry Workman, Mrs. Guy Bayly, Mrs. John R. Fisher, Mrs. George Mandoloni, Mrs. Henry W. L. Kidder, Mrs. Ralph Austin, Mrs. Glen R. Butler, Mrs. Lynn B. Timmerman, Mrs. George R. Clayton, Mrs. J. P. Bowman, Miss Eleanor Bell, Mrs. Harry L. Ponton, Mrs. Wallace King and Mrs. Paul J. Steuber.

Music for the evening was furnished by a nine piece orchestra which was seated on the stage. Here fall palms were effectively used while on either side of the stage an art basket filled with gorgeous poinsettias and tied with red satin bows was placed.

Holly wreaths, palms and poinsettias also added to the attractiveness of the hall room. The lights were softened with greenery and southern smiles.

During the intermission at midnight a two course buffet luncheon was served.

Proceeds from the ball will be utilized in enlarging a fund, which is being raised by the Delphian club for the erection and equipment of a new city hospital.

Miss Eleanor Hawisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hawisher, S. E. corner, will leave next Tuesday for Cincinnati, where she will enter the College of Music. Miss Hawisher was a student at Ohio Northern University until the holidays.

Frank Hoover returned to his home in Columbus, Ind., Wednesday. He was accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. Vernon A. Fisher, State-st., and Mrs. P. M. Bell and daughter, Mary Martha, S. Metcalf-st., who will remain for several days.

Susie Smart's Advice

Dear Miss Smart: I am a girl 17 years old. I receive quite a few letters. I become provoked at my mother, as she opens all of my mail and reads it before I ever have a chance to see it. Of course I do not especially object to her reading my letters, but I do feel that I am old enough to open and take care of my own mail. Don't you think so?

C. C. C. THE average girl of your age may be trusted to open her letters, but not every girl of 17 may be depended upon to keep her correspondence with young men within the bounds of discretion and good taste.

I am certain that your mother has your welfare at heart, and that she is not doing this merely to intrude. It is far better for a girl to have too much supervision than not enough. It is quite possible that your mother finds it difficult to realize you are no longer a child and, consequently, still retains a mother's privilege to inspect her daughter's letters.

Dear Miss Smart: I am a girl 17 years old. There is a boy in our neighborhood whom I greatly admire. He comes to see me quite frequently and always seems to take an interest in my affairs. He never once has he invited me to go anywhere with him. I cannot understand this. I think the least he could do would be to invite me to an occasional dance or to a movie. Don't you think he really cares for me? He would be anxious to provide some kind of amusement for me?

CRETORA. What proof have you that this boy really cares for you? It is quite possible and even evident that he comes to see you as a friend and a neighbor, more than as an admirer. You should simply accept his friendship on this basis and not be so bold as to attempt to force his attentions. If this young man is really interested in you, it is his privilege to extend courtesies and invitations to you.

Dear Miss Smart: I want to ask you if you can give me a remedy to reduce the fat around my ankles. I do not get sufficient exercise because I am a very good walker. I walk much more than the average person. My ankles are so much larger in proportion to the rest of me that it is quite embarrassing. Can't you please offer some suggestion?

WORRIED. Alum water, if used every night, should help to reduce the fat around your ankles. Place your feet in the water, keeping it as hot as you can stand it for about 10 minutes. Then massage with alum water. You must then retire, as the pores of your system will be open. It will not be harmful to bathe the ankles in alum water every night, but I would not advise you to take the hot bath often than twice a week. To make alum water, pour one pint of boiling water over one spoonful of alum. Let stand 24 hours and strain, placing in a bottle for use.

BARONESS STERNIN-WENNER

"Royalties," says Baroness Sternin-Wenner, "are much like other people."

"Some of them are just as stupid." The baroness is in this country from Europe. She brought with her, as might have been expected, her extraordinary talent at portraiture, and a mind filled with memories of the Old World's saddened royal personages, the faces of many of whom she has put on canvas.

Members of the fallen Russian court, King William of Bavaria, the king and queen of Wurtemberg, the Duchess of Teck and her children, Queen Charlotte, the Prince of Wales, the Princess Mary, Prince Alexander Hohenlohe, the Maharajah of Baroda—these and many others have sat to the baroness for their portraits.

JUST AN EXAMPLE The queen of Wittenberg is just an example. "She's living now," says the baroness, "on a little estate left by her husband. She has only one or two ladies with her. You wouldn't know her from anybody else."

"Aside from the loss of their families, I imagine that many of these ex-royalties are glad no longer to be obliged to carry their former pomp and artificiality about with them."

"Once," continued the baroness, glancing backward into the past, "when I had an exhibition of pictures, the king of Bavaria asked me to show him around. But oils, watercolor, pastels, all were the same to him. He admired only the paintings of ladies with bare shoulders and ample draperies."

WANTS HER PEARLS "Now, here in America, the lady of the man who has made his money in trade, comes and sits for her portrait, and what she most particular about is being painted in her pearls."

"I paint, but the pearls aren't big enough."

"I make the pearls as big as filberts."

"Then I make them as big as walnuts, and finally the sinner is satisfied."

YOUR AMERICAN WAY That is the American way, but I like it.

"Americans know what they want. No American will admire a painting of a cabbage just because somebody else has told him it's good."

Born in England of Swiss parentage, the baroness was whisked into German court life this holiday season to a German officer who was killed in the last year of the war.

Dr. and Mrs. P. L. Foust, S. Collett-st., and Mrs. Amelia A. Schiewe, S. Collett-st., will leave New Year's Day for Miami, Fla., where they will be located during the winter months. They will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Kluse, Defiance. At the present time their plans include a trip to Havana, Cuba, where they will spend some time.

Mrs. Mary Longbrun, New York, is spending the holidays at the home of Mrs. Mary Caffrey, W. McKibben-st.

Mrs. L. A. Larsen, W. Market-st., has as her house-guest, Mrs. R. J. Eppley, Youngstown.

Members of the Alhambra club will entertain with the second of a series of dances in the K. of C. hall-room, Thursday evening. Plans have been made for a most enjoyable evening.

Mrs. John Simpson, W. Wayne-st., has as her guest, Miss Carolyn Schryver, Columbus.

Down in Bed Every Week With Sick Headache Before Taking Plant Juice

SAYS IT WORKED WONDERS

"I tried many different medicines for my stomach trouble and attacks of sick headache but did not get any relief. Then I started taking Plant Juice and it has done wonders for me and I am glad to recommend it," said Mrs. N. J. Snyder, of 137 Col.

MRS. N. J. SNYDER
Mrs. N. J. Snyder, during a recent conversation with The Plant Juice Man at Hunter's drug store, 49 Public Square.

"During the last seven or eight years, I have had to go to bed one or two days nearly every week with an awful headache," Mrs. Snyder continued. "I had bloating spells after meals and often would be very sick at my stomach. I had pains in my back and stomach and could not sleep at night. It seemed that my system was all run down for I felt tired nearly all the time."

"Finally, I decided to try your Plant Juice and I want to say that I have not suffered a single attack of sick headache since I started taking it. The bloating has been relieved; I eat and sleep fine; the pains have left my back and stomach and, in short, I simply feel like a different woman."

Indigestion, gas and bloating, biliousness, sick headache, fermentation of food, pains in stomach and chest, sour stomach—these are the complaints of millions of Americans. Plant Juice has given relief in many such cases.

The Plant Juice Man is at Hunter's drug store, 49 Public Square, Lima, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

Plant Juice is sold also in Lima at Hunter's drug store at Main and Wayne streets and at the Argonne drug store, opposite Post Office.

THE SKY LINE OF SPRUCE

By EDISON MARSHALL

And Ray's hands fell from her shoulders as he heard the incredible answer from the shore of the lake.

"I'm coming Beatrice," some one said in the covert. Her cries, uttered when her father fell, had not come unheard.

Ben walked quietly into the circle of firelight and stood at Beatrice's side. But while Ray and Chan gazed at him as if he were a spectre from the grave, Beatrice's only impulse was one of immeasurable and unquenchable thankfulness.

The man was exhausted—helpless in their hands. All Ray's aims had been attained. With Ben's death the claim, a fourth of which had been his portion when he had slain Eram, would pass entirely to him—except a share as he would have to give Chan.

Nelson lay seriously wounded, perhaps dead by now. Whatever his injuries, he would not go back with them to share in the gold of the claim. The girl, also, was his prey—to do with her what he liked.

Ben's face hardened. "There is nothing I can do, now. You came too late. But I would have had something to do if I had my rifle."

"Oh, you depraved dog!" he told them quietly and distinctly. "You yellow, mongrel cowards!"

Ray straightened, stung by the words. "And I'll make you wish you were dead before you ever said that," he threatened. Chan—put a rope around his legs and a gag in his rotten mouth.

They moved toward him simultaneously, and Ben summoned the last jot of his almost-spent strength to hurl them off. They did not need deadly weapons for this wasted form. Yet for the duration of one second Ben fought with an incredible ferocity and valor.

But such an unequal battle could last only an instant. Ray focused his attack upon Ben's injured left arm. Chan struck once at the girl, hailing her to the ground with a base blow, then lashed brutal blows into Ben's face. The burst of strength ebbed as quickly as it had come, his legs witted under him, and he sank slowly to the ground.

For a few minutes they took little notice of the prone figures. The far edge of the fading firelight. Attention could be given them soon enough. Their own triumph was beginning to give way to deep fatigue.

Ben and Beatrice had talked softly at first, accepting their fate at last and trying to forget all things but the fact of each other's presence. His right hand held hers close to his lips, and only she could understand the message in its soft pressure. But presently her gaze fastened on some object in the grass beside him.

"I see a way out—for us both," she told him. She knew he would not misunderstand and dream that he saw an actual avenue to life and safety. "Don't give any sign."

"Then hurry," he urged. "They may be back any instant. What is it?"

"A way to cheat 'em—to keep them from torturing you—and to save me—from all the things they'll do to me—when you're dead. Oh, Ben—you won't fail me—you'll do it for me."

He smiled, gently and strongly. "Do you think I'd fail you now?"

Then reach your good arm on the other side. There's a knife lying there—your own knife—they knocked out of my hand. You know what to do—first me, in the throat—then yourself."

He turned, groping with his hand. There was no use of waiting longer. The knife lay just beyond his reach and subtly he moved his body thro the grass.

But this gate to mercy was closed before they reached it. A sudden flaring of the fire revealed them—the gleam of the blade and Ben's stretching hand—and Ray left his log in a swift, catlike leap.

With a sharp oath Ray crushed the

WITH FIENDISH, MANIACAL FURY HE HAD SPRUNG TO Avenge the blow.

the blade into the ground with his heel, then kicked viciously at the prone body of his enemy.

His eye fell on a long, heavy club of spruce that had been cut for fuel. He bent and his strong hands seized it.

As he swung it high the girl leaped between—with a last, frantic effort, wholly instinctive—to shield Ben's body with her own. Chan had followed Ben, and sharing Ray's fiendish mood, jerked her aside.

Yet it was to be that Ray's murderous blow was never to go home. A mighty and terrible ally had come to Ben's aid. He came pounding from the darkness, a gaunt and dreadful avenger whose code of death was as remorseless as Ray's own.

It was Fenris the wolf, and he had found his master at last. Missing him at the accustomed place in the cave, he had trailed him to the lake margin; a smell on the wind had led him the rest of the way. Like a ghost he had glided almost to the edge of the firelight, lingering there—until he had made up his brutal mind in regard to the strangers in the camp.

But he had waited only until he saw Ray kick the helpless form before him—that of the god that Fenris, for all the wild had claimed him, still worshipped in his inmost heart. With fiendish, maniacal fury he had sprung to avenge the blow.

And his three followers, trained by the pack laws to follow where he led, and keyed to the highest pitch by their leader's fury, leaped like gray demons of the Pit in his wake.

As a young tree breaks and goes down in the gale Ray Brent went down before the combined attack of the wolves.

Before ever Ray fell, Ben had taken what measures of self-defense he could in case the pack, forgetting its master's master, might turn on himself and the girl. He had reached the knife hilt and severed the ropes about the girl's wrists. "Stay behind me," he cautioned. "Don't move a muscle."

He saw Chan go down, seemingly in a single instant, and he braced himself against attack. "Down, Fenris!" he shouted. "Down—get down!"

Then Fenris whined in answer, and Ben knew that he was no longer to be feared. The three lesser wolves seemed startled, standing in a nervous group, yet growling savagely and eyeing him across the dying fire. Fenris trotted slowly toward Ben, but with the true instincts of the wild his followers knew that this was no affair of fangs and death. He came in love, in a remembered comradeship, just as often he had led them to the mouth of the cavern, and they did not understand. They slowly backed away into the shadows, fading like ghosts.

Ben's arms, in unspeakable gratitude, went about the shoulders of the wolf. Beatrice, sobbing uncontrollably yet swept with that infinite thankfulness of the redeemed, crept to his side. Fenris whined and shivered in the arms of his god.

Quietude came at last to that camp beside the lake. In the far, hidden heart of Back There.

The wolves had gone. Fenris's three brethren had slipped away, perhaps wholly mystified and deeply awed by their madness of a moment before; and from the ridge top they had called for their leader to join them. He had done his work, he had avenged the base blow that seemed to strike at his own wild heart, he had received the carous he had craved—and there was no law for him to stay. The female called enticingly; the wild game was running for his pleasure on the trails.

Ben had watched the struggle in his fierce breast, and Beatrice's eyes were soft and wonderfully lustrous in the subdued light as she gave the wolf a parting caress.

He could not deny the call of his followers on the ridge. It was like a chain, drawing him remorselessly to them. Whining, he had sped away into the darkness.

The fire had been built up. Beatrice had rallied her spent strength by full feeding of the rich, dried meat, and had done what she could for Nelson's injury. Ben, exhausted, had lain down in some of the blankets of his enemy's outfit. Nelson was not mortally hurt. The bullet had coursed through the region of his shoulder, missing his heart and lungs, and although he was all but unconscious, they had every reason to believe that a few weeks of rest would see him well again.

Beatrice bathed the wound, bandaged it the best she could, then covered him up warmly and let him go to sleep. As the stars came out at last, long past the midnight hour, that she crept once more to Ben's side.

There was little indeed for them to say. The stress of the night had taken from them almost all desire to talk. But Ben took her hand in his feebly, and held it against his lips. "We're safe now," Beatrice told him, her eyes still bright with tears. "We've seen it through, and we're safe."

Presently she saw that he was trying to speak to her, whispering: trying to draw her ear down to his lips. She smiled, with an infinite tenderness. Dimly though he spoke, she heard him every word.

"I love you," he told simply. He watched her face, as intently as the three Wise Men watched the East, for a sign. And he saw it, clear and ineffably wonderful, in the stars that came into her eyes.

"I love you," she answered, with equal simplicity. They lay awhile in silence, blissful in this wonder each had for the other, wholly content just that their hands and lips should touch.

The same miracle was upon them both; and the girl's thought, ranging far, seized upon a deep and moving discovery. "All this belongs to us," she told him, indicating with one movement of her arm the boundless solitudes about them. "This is our own country isn't it, Ben? We can't ever—go away."

The fire burned down. The moon wheeled through the sky. The tall spruce saw the dawn afar and beckoned.

THE END.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Fat Man's Race

By OLIVER ROBERTS BARTON

"Here," he said, handing it to Nancy. "Give him this."

"We met Wally Woodchuck today," said Nancy to the Green Wizard.

"And what does he want?" asked the kind fairy gentleman, knowing how greedy Wally is and how he's always wanting something.

"He says there is to be a picnic in Bright Meadow and everybody is asked. And he is going to be in the fat man's race and wants you to send him a charm so he'll win the prize."

"Humph!" exclaimed the Green Wizard. He hadn't lived in the treetops for a hundred years or more for nothing. He had seen enough of Wally and his ancestors to know that they were as lazy as all get out—if you know how lazy that is.

"Aren't you going to give it to him?" asked Nick. "He'll be disappointed if you don't."

"Like all selfish people," declared the wizard a bit crossly. "That's why he's so fat. He never does anything for anybody but himself. Well, I suppose I'll have to send him some sort of a charm, but I'll send him some good advice along with it."

He went to his cupboard and took out a small object that looked like a stone. "Here," he said, handing it to Nancy. "Give him this and tell him it won't work unless he runs 10 miles before breakfast every morning and lives on one meal a day until the time of the race. Also, he must work more and stop sleeping so much."

A week later a whistle sounded below the tree where the Green Wizard lived. Nancy and Nick (who were helping) and the kind fairy-man looked down. And there was Wally, as thin as a rail, but looking very happy.

"I won! I won!" he cried. "They put me in the thin man's race instead of the fat man's and I won. Do you want your charm, back, Mr. Wizard?"

The Green Wizard laughed. "You may keep it, Wally," he called. "It's nothing but a plain stone. You won the race yourself."

CAPTAIN BLOOD

By RAFAEL SABATINI

and the battle-stained Jeremy Pitt sped to cover in a clothes-press. Baynes was uneasy.

And then they came rattling and clanking into the stone-flagged hall a round dozen jack-booted, lobster-coated troopers of the Tangiers Regiment, led by a sturdy, black-browed fellow with a deal of gold lace about the breast of his coat.

"I am Captain Hobart, of Colonel Kirke's dragoons. What rebels do you harbor?"

The yeoman took alarm at that ferocious truncheon. It expressed itself in his trembling voice.

"I... I am no harbinger of rebels, sir. This wounded gentleman..."

"I can see for myself." The Captain stamped forward to the day-bed, and scowled down upon the gray-faced sufferer.

"Out with him, my lads."

Mr. Blood got between the day-bed and the troopers.

"In the name of humanity, sir!" said he, on a note of anger. "This is England, not Tangiers. The gentleman is in sore case. He may not be moved without peril to his life."

Captain Hobart was amused. "Who the hell may you be?" he exploded.

"My name is Blood, sir—Peter Blood, at your service."

"What brings you here, sir?"

"This wounded gentleman. I am a physician practicing my calling in the town of Bridgewater."

The Captain sneered. "Which you reached by way of Lyme Regis, the following of your bastard Duke."

"It was Mr. Blood's turn to sneer. "If your wit were as big as your voice, my dear, it's the great man you'd be by this."

For a moment the dragoon was speechless. The color deepened in his face.

"You may find me great enough to hang you, his lordship spoke for himself, in a weak voice.

"I make no concealment of my association with the Duke of Monmouth. I'll take the consequences. But, if you please, I'll take them after trial—by my peers."

"Take up the day-bed," said Captain Hobart, "and convey him on that to Bridgewater. Lodge him in the gaol until I take order about him."

Giddy made a feeble effort to put forth a hand toward Mr. Blood. "Sir," he said, "you leave me in your debt. If I live I shall study how to discharge it."

As his lordship was carried out, the Captain became brisk. He turned upon the yeoman.

"What other cursed rebels do you harbor?"

"None other, sir. His lordship. But the Captain did not heed him. He was stooping to pick up a soiled and dusty hat in which there was pinned a little bunch of oak-leaves. It had been lying near the clothes-press in which the unfortunate Pitt had taken refuge. The Captain smiled malevolently.

Then the Captain stepped to the press, and pulled open one of the wings of its massive oak door.

He took the huddled inmate by the collar of his doublet, and lugged him out into the open.

The soldiers trailed out by the door leading to the interior. Mr. Blood was thrust by his guards into a cold cell, he looked back at Captain Hobart, and his sapphire eyes were blazing.

CHAPTER III
The Lord Chief Justice

It was not until two months later—on the 15th of September—that Peter Blood was brought to trial, upon a charge of high treason. Two months of inhuman, unspeakable imprisonment had moved his mind to a cold and deadly hatred of King James and his representatives.

His chain companion on that march to prison had been the same Jeremy Pitt who had been the agent of his present misfortunes. The young shipmaster had remained his close companion after their common arrest.

WRESTLING TO BE ADDED TO LIST OF SCHOOL SPORTS

GOOD FORM IS IMPORTANT IN BOWLING

BY BILLY EVANS

In every sport, form plays a prominent part.

The great hitters in baseball have a similarity in style. There is the follow thru motion with the snap of the wrist as the ball meets the bat.

In golf form again plays a prominent role. The great players have much the same style. The never fail to keep their eye on the ball, their swing is so perfect it almost seems mechanical. On the greens there is that deft touch which is essential.

Gus Surzen, the greatest golfer of 1922, frankly admits that he has shaped his game around the great players he has seen in action since his days as a mere caddy.

Sarazen says that he has taken a leaf from the book of every golfer. He has selected the best features of the play of the really great golfers and profited thereby.

In bowling, form is as essential to success as in any other sport.

Jimmy Blinn, who recently won a 50 game match from Jimmy Smith of Milwaukee, in which he averaged 295 for the series, bowls in perfect form. So does Smith, who was only a fraction of a pin behind Blinn.

Proper approach, eye on the pins, and a perfect follow thru are according to Blinn essential to the bowler who wishes to make consistently good scores.

In his match with Smith, Blinn again proved that he is a great money bowler. Trailing for the first 50 games, he came from behind, and in the final block of 10 games, overcame the handicap and finished 23 pins to the good.

The series was closely contested. Blinn's total for the 60 games was 12,300 while Smith had a mark of 12,277.

Blinn is generally regarded as the world's champion bowler. His victory over Smith gives him permanent possession of diamond trophy, emblematic of the championship.

Here are a few of Blinn's pointers:

1. Hit the head pin.

2. Practice constantly for control.

3. Get your spurs. They count big in the long run.

4. Don't get the impression that speed is necessary to pile up strikes.

5. Many of the game's greatest bowlers use a half-swing ball that gives the pins a chance to work.

6. Cultivate a good disposition if you are not fortunate enough to have one. Accept the tough breaks as a part of the game.

7. Spite is a part of bowling. You often get them on perfect hits.

8. Last but not least, keep your eye on the pins.

"TOLL OF THE SEA," IN COLORS, UNUSUAL FILM

(BY ESTHER WAGNER)
STROPHOLITANS consider "The Toll of the Sea" a photoplay of unusual merit because it is all in colors and the color job has been done a bit better than has been done heretofore. Another unusual feature of this film is that it has the unhappy ending that its plot indicates. There has been no attempt by the producers to offer the conventional happy ending as a sentimental sop to the sentimental crowd who won't take their romance unless it's sugar-sweet. "The Toll of the Sea" is much

Beautiful Katherine In Tragic Film Tale

POLITICS, with all the old tricks, forms the theme for Katherine MacDonald's new picture, "Woman's Side," which arrived on Wednesday to spend four days at the Sigma theatre. Unless you get there right at the start, you're going to have one awful time trying to figure out just what's what and why. At least, I did. The main plot or climax figures about a divorce story which NOT be published in the paper, the girl's future is completely ruined. The girl, of course, is Miss MacDonald, who thinks she is the unwanted daughter of the divorcee, until the final chapter, when her identity is divulged. There is also a splendid comedy, "Fardon My Glove" and other features.

Screen Romance of Kentucky Coming to Lyric

THE Kentucky Derby comes to the Lyric theater next Sunday as the next big Universal offering directed by Irving Pichel, who made "Human Hearts." "Human Hearts" has been achieving extraordinary success throughout the world because of its universal appeal. "The Kentucky Derby" is a different type of picture, offering thrills and action but handled by the same artist. The director displays the same remarkable genius of human characterizations in both pictures, however. Reginald Denny, Universal's featured player of "The Leather Stocking," who is also remembered for his success in "Disraeli," has the lead masculine part, offering the public through a series of six or seven universal appearances in a row, will be seen opposite Denny. Lillian Rich, character man of consistent successes in the past, will be seen in a principal portrayal, as "Little Lord Fauntleroy" fame. Gertrude Astor, Lima girl, who in the past four years has appeared in the pictures from every leading producer has a secondary feminine part, and Kingsley Benedict promotes the jockey part which he played for ten years in the original stage production. Walter McGrath, Harry Carter, Pat Harmon, Wilfred Lucas—of "Helldorado" fame—Bert Woodruff, Tracy, Anna Hernandez and Gene Winter also are in the cast.

like "Madame Butterfly." A Chinese girl loves a white man. He returns to America without her. Then he goes back to China with his white bride. The Chinese girl surrenders his baby to his new bride and then walks out into the sea. She has found the white man cast upon the shore. A Chinese legend holds that the sea demands tribute for each good or beautiful thing it yields. The girl pays the tribute according to the legend. Beatrice Bentley makes her film debut as the white bride in "The Toll of the Sea." She is a beautiful girl, a newcomer to the screen.

obviously centers each scene and situation that the cast means little or nothing in your young life. Photography and sets are splendid and small details were well attended to. Miss MacDonald is very, very beautiful and she has moments of sincere emotion. However, she has never been accorded a really big story and what talents she has are practically dormant. However, "Woman's Side" can be classed as an average program picture, well done and in the main, well acted. On the same program, a most interesting and instructive illustrated talk on the famous tombs of the world is given. There is also a splendid comedy, "Fardon My Glove" and other features.

Viola Dana will, it is expected, sign a new contract Jan. 1, with Metro, Ltd., the girl she may make "Sally"—from the musical comedy of the same name.

News that Mildred Davis would still be Harold Lloyd's leading woman is now flanked by the announcement that she is to be featured in a series of productions, the first of which will be called "Temporary Marie."

H. F. VORTKAMP, FORMER LIMA DRUGGIST, VICTIM OF DEATH AT MILFORD

H. F. Vortkamp, 64, for more than a quarter of a century engaged in business in Lima as a druggist, died Wednesday night at his home in Milford, near Cincinnati, from double pneumonia. Four years ago he left this city, after disposing of one of his stores to his son, Charles Vortkamp and the other to the Mykranitz company.

He is survived by two other sons, George, of Barberton and Harry of New York City. There are two daughters, Mrs. William Keller, S. Scott and another in the convent at Cincinnati.

Funeral services and burial will take place Saturday morning, at Cincinnati.

UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH REVIVAL ATTRACTS MANY

Large crowds are nightly attending the revival services which are being held at the W. High-st. United Brethren church by the pastor, Rev. W. A. Saunders.

The sermon Wednesday night on the "Second Coming of Christ" was especially well received. Doctrinal subjects will be the sermon topics for the balance of the week it is said.

Services are being held, every night except Saturday.

DELPHOS CONTROL BOARD TO PLAY NO FAVORITES IN PAVING MATERIALS

While the Delphos board of control, composed of Mayor J. K. Williams, Service Director Ed Spellman and W. H. Shaffer, clerk, is of the opinion that wood block would be excellent material to use in street paving, it will be given no more encouragement than other materials in the final selection for S. Main, S. Pierce and Cleveland-sts., officials assert.

Williams, Thursday, reiterated his statement made Tuesday before council that "wood block, if properly laid, would make an ideal street, but it does not necessarily mean that if the contract is again let the board of control will select that material."

Council Tuesday night took the first advance steps in the proposed project in several years. Consensus of opinion among councilmen is that revised legislation should be framed and an early start made in 1923.

Re-employment of Carl Simon, Van Wert engineer, was the first definite step taken by council.

Repeal of three ordinances governing the project will occupy attention of council at the next meeting. Substitution of three others will be made. An entire new start is proposed and councilmen declared that if the paving is not done within the next year it may as well be abandoned. Relief that the paving can be completed next season was noted when council advanced Simon's contract for only one year when a longer period, possibly two years, was at first advocated.

SHORT SHAVINGS

David Armstrong, St. Mary's attorney, has it all figured out. "I understand these bootleggers bring about the raids themselves," he is quoted as having said.

"They say the supply of liquor gets too plentiful and prices accordingly drop unless some steps are taken to curtail the supply."

Armstrong believes the conclusion is reasonable.

Rob Reul, of Delphos, hardware salesman and expert at pinocchio, stopped to talk to a friend who sat in a small car parked in Main-st.

"The car shook me," he says. "I thought there were two of them in the front seat."

Ed Timmermeister, City Savings company, brought home a fancy silver-plated cigar lighter from a trip to Cincinnati.

"It's the best lighter I ever saw," he says. "It works almost as well as a penny box of matches."

Howard D. Austin, grocer, Priceave and Metcalf, needed a padlock for his garage. He bought a costly one. Two keys came with it. He didn't want to lose them, so he slipped them over the bar of the padlock for safekeeping and snapped it shut.

Then he thought the situation over more carefully. He's still thinking, he says, but he can't think of anything to do about it except to purchase a file.

Jim Grubb, florist and vocalist, was surprised when an officer stopped his car as he was passing thru Fifth.

"I'm not going fast," Grubb protested.

"If you ain't now, you must have been," said the officer. Holmes.

"The chicken feathers on the front of your car prove you hit a hen, and you must have been going pretty fast to do that."

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. It keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "222 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., St. Wayne, Ind.
